Dear Mr. Darbee:

On August 25, 2010, the Federal Communications Commission notified PG&E Corporation that had received complaints from Mr. (name withheld) that equipment operated by your utility might be causing harmful radio interference to his amateur radio equipment. Mr. (name withheld) contact information is as follows:

The August 25, 2010 letter advised PG&E Corporation that the interference, if unresolved, could be a violation of Commission rules. For this reason, we encouraged PG&E Corporation to voluntarily resolve the matter without Commission intervention. The letter specifically stated, however, that if it became necessary for the Commission to facilitate a resolution, the Commission might investigate possible rule violations and address appropriate remedies, including monetary forfeitures.¹ PG&E Corporation did not respond to the August 25, 2010 letter. Likewise, Mr. (name withheld) reports that there has been no reduction in the radio frequency interference.

In order to avoid enforcement action on this matter, you have thirty (30) days from the date of receipt of this warning to respond to this office at the following address: 1270 Fairfield Road, Gettysburg, PA 17325. The response must contain a statement of the specific action(s)
